Dear Sirs:

Would it be possible for me to secure photographs of the Victoria Cross, the Iron Cross of Prussia and other of the decorations you have on exhibition? I would like to use them with an article about them in a paper for young people.

Very truly yours,

J. L. Harbour

Dear Sir:-

Replying to your letter I would say that this Society has in its collection, specimens of both the Victoria Cross of England and the Iron Cross of Prussia. We have no photographs of either of these. Should you desire to have them photographed, it could be done at any time that might be convenient, or I can have them photographed for you if you would prefer.

Very truly yours,

Secretary.

Dear Sirs:

July 26, 1926.

I am writing a brief article about coins for a paper for boys and am wondering if I can get from you a photograph of the Confederate half-dollar, of which I read that there are but four known to be in existence. Can you put me in the way of getting this photograph? I would be grateful for this favor.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Sir:

Responding to your note of July 26th,
I think we can send you a photograph of the Confederate half-dollar, if it will not unduly delay you to wait until the end of next week,
at which time our Curator will have returned.
We shall have to charge you the cost for having this photograph made, but it will not be large.

Very truly yours,

Secretary

Dear Sir:

I regret that I am unable to lay my hands on the photograph or negative of the Confederate half-dollar. I am enclosing, herewith, a half-tone reproduction of it, made with a fine screen, and possibly you can use this. If not satisfactory, please let me know and I will have a photograph made of it for you when next we have any other photographing done. The cost would be about $2.50. You are welcome to this half-tone impressions, which I hope will serve your purpose.

The other side of the piece is the same as the regular United States issue, and it is very doubtful if you could illustrate this on account of the counterfeiting laws.

Very truly yours,

Enc.
